

Dear Education School Student,

The NYC Department of Education is interviewing locally! Teachers Support Network (TSN) is working with the NYC Department of Education in filling thousands of open teaching positions in the 'high-need' subject areas of Math, Science, ESL, Spanish, Students with Disabilities and Bilingual Subjects.

Interviews are being held on February 8, 2008 in Durham, NC.

Remember, please, that in order to attend an interview, you MUST be certified (or certification pending, i.e., graduating) in one of the aforementioned high-need subject areas. Info sessions, however, are open to anyone seeking information about working for the NYC DOE. In order to register, click here, choose the appropriate "North Carolina, Durham 2/8/08" event (Hotel Interview OR Information Session) from the drop-down menu, and complete the registration. (Note that if you are already registered with Teachers Support Network, there is a link near the top of the above mentioned registration page for you to follow).

These are great jobs with excellent benefits and a starting salary of close to $40,000 per year for those candidates with no experience. With an optional six-week program to get you into the swing of things in NYC--while receiving a stipend!--and the Big Apple itself, with all its energy and attractions at your fingertips, this is an extraordinary opportunity.

Teachers Support Network (TSN) offers a comprehensive solution to K-12 teachers looking for employment. In addition to searching for jobs from school districts nationwide, both new and experienced teachers will find a wealth of useful information, including job-hunting advice, teacher tools, and timely articles and comment. And remember: teaching candidates are never charged for using the service--Teachers Support Network's entire system is always free to teachers.
