

Fourthclass Duties and Details

Mission. Upperclass cadets plan and supervise fourthclass execution of various duties and details in order to build upperclass capacity to lead and manage small teams and to build fourthclass capacity to work as members of a team, accomplish tasks to standard, and exercise peer leadership.

Intent. Upperclass cadets use the steps and principles of CTM and the plan, prep, execute, and assess training methodology to accomplish the mission and develop themselves and the fourthclass cadets.

Concept of Operations. The chain of command conducts periods of instruction and issues orders that effectively communicate the mission to both the upperclass supervisor and the fourthclass members of the detail. The members of the detail execute the mission under upperclass supervision. As the school year progresses and the fourthclass cadets develop capacity, the upperclass cadets increasingly use more decentralized leadership techniques, while still maintaining appropriate supervision, and the fourthclass cadets increasingly assume greater responsibilities for peer leadership and management. Standing fourthclass duties and details are listed in the Blue Book and on the training schedule. Additional duties and details require authorization of the TAC.
