K. Class Specifications

1. Each class specification defines in general terms examples of the kind of work and level of responsibility normally assigned positions that may be allocated to the class. The exact duties and responsibilities of positions allocated to any one class may differ; however, all positions allocated to a class will be sufficiently similar as to kind of work, level of difficulty or responsibility and qualification requirements to warrant like treatment for Human Resources administration purposes.

2. The State Office of Human Resources is responsible for developing the format to be used in preparing class specifications.

3. Class specifications consists of:
   a. Class Title – the state classification name assigned to a class.
   b. General Nature of Work – the brief statement summarizing what work is performed by incumbents in this class.
   c. Guidelines for Class Use/Distinguishing Characteristics – the brief statement summarizing how work is performed, the breadth of job responsibilities and level of supervision received. This section may be omitted if it is not needed for further clarification.
   d. Examples of work – statements of duties that reflect responsibility common to all positions in the class but are not necessarily fully descriptive of any one position in the class.
   e. Knowledge, Skills and Abilities – a list of competencies, each of which is required for the successful performance of one or more job duties of the class, but not necessarily full descriptive of the competencies required for any one position in the class.
   f. Necessary Special Requirements – statement(s) of required special licensure or professional certification which may be required for some or all positions in the class. This section may be omitted if it is not needed for further clarification.
   g. Minimum Requirements – as statement of the minimum combination of education and experience normally required for the satisfactory performance of the duties of positions in the one position in the class. The State Office of Human Resources may approve such equivalencies as may be deemed appropriate.
4. Class specifications will be maintained on a current basis by The Citadel’s Human Resources Department and the State Office of Human Resources. Revisions and additions will be furnished by the State Office of Human Resources to The Citadel’s Human Resources Department.

L. Position Descriptions

1. The position description will serve as a record of the duties assigned to an individual position in a class. The position description is used to compare positions to ensure uniformity of classification and as a basis for other human resources decisions.

2. The position description will include an accurate description of assigned duties and responsibilities and other pertinent information concerning a position. In contrast to general definitions of the level of work and responsibilities, the position description will include specific duties and responsibilities assigned to a position by the appropriate authority, the percentage of time normally devoted to each duty and the designation of essential and marginal functions.

3. All position descriptions will be maintained by both The Citadel’s Human Resources Department and the State Office of Human Resources on a current basis. Position descriptions should be reviewed by the supervisor with the employee during the performance evaluation to ensure accuracy.

4. When an employee vacates a position, a new position description will be completed and promptly filed with the Human Resources Department, where the proper classification of the position will be determined based on the assigned duties and responsibilities of the position.

M. Classification of New Positions

Each new position will first be authorized by the appropriate funding authority and in accordance with the policies of the Budget and Control Board. Each position will be classified by the State Office of Human Resources or by The Citadel’s Human Resources Department, before any action is taken to fill the position.

N. Reclassification of Positions

1. An established position may be reclassified from one class to a different class as a result of a natural or an organizational change in the duties and responsibilities of a position.

2. Reclassifications for filled positions cannot be effected for situations involving the assignment of new duties and responsibilities that have the effect of creating a new position.
