On Overview for students

July 19, 2018
“We live in an age of movement and change, both evolutionary and revolutionary, both good and evil. And in such an age, a university has a special obligation to hold fast to the best of the past and move fast with the best of the future.”

--John F. Kennedy
Liberal Arts Education: Its Enduring Importance

• “Education is the kindling of a flame, not the filling of a vessel.”
  --Socrates, 420 B.C.

• “The value of an education in a liberal arts college is not the learning of many facts, but the training of the mind to think something that cannot be learned from textbooks.”
  --Albert Einstein, 1914

• “Who will lead America into a bright future? Citizens who are educated in the broadest possible sense, so they can participate in their own governance and engage with the world. An adaptable and creative workforce. Experts in national security, equipped with the cultural understanding, knowledge of social dynamics, and language proficiency to lead our foreign service and military through complex global conflicts. Elected officials and a broader public who exercise civil political discourse, founded on an appreciation of the ways our differences and commonalities have shaped our rich history. We must prepare the next generation to be these future leaders.”
Mission

• The SHSS is the foundation of a liberal arts education at The Citadel. It teaches students the fundamental principles of major fields of knowledge. It develops their appreciation of the diversity of the human experience. It cultivates their ability to conduct research, to think critically, to draw logical conclusions, and to express their thoughts effectively. It encourages them to welcome—and to learn from—conversations with people who use the same process to arrive at conclusions different from their own. And it emphasizes the need constantly to expand the boundaries of knowledge by promoting the research and publication of its faculty. Through this process, the SHSS seeks to prepare and motivate students to be informed, principled, and effective leaders in all avenues of life.

• Among the professions most commonly pursued by SHSS majors are: national security (public and private sectors), criminal justice, business, law, communications, education, public service, journalism, and the arts. Distinguished alumni include Ernest F. Hollings, John C. West, Joseph P. Riley, Jr., Pat Conroy, Morris Robinson, and Petra Lovetinska,

“This approach to a college education provides both broad knowledge in a variety of areas of study and knowledge in a specific major or field of interest. It also helps students develop a sense of social responsibility, as well as intellectual and practical skills that span all areas of study, such as communication, analytical, and problem-solving skills, and a demonstrated ability to apply knowledge and skills in real-world settings.”

Brandon Bohrn,
• OVERVIEW: Interdisciplinary seminar designed to engage students in a deeper understanding of the intersection of business, culture and politics as it applies to leadership in our nation’s capital. Each Monday, students partner with faculty to explore DC landmarks that illustrate the conjunction of business, culture, and political science in terms of better understanding leadership of our nation. Instructors approach the capital from a variety of perspectives and disciplines, incorporating concepts of ethics, leadership, and critical thinking. From Tuesday through Friday, internships in diverse fields complement the academic knowledge with professional experiences. A comprehensive paper and presentation tie all of these efforts together over the nine week period. Co-taught by faculty from different disciplines. Led by Professor Tiffany Silverman of English, Fine Arts, and Communications. Course satisfies 3 upper-level course credit hours towards majors/minors/ general electives plus 6 credit hours for the internship.
Common Internships
