The Process

Dr. Weeks asked D. David Desplaces to facilitate the strategic planning review process for the committee. His role was centered on keeping the committee on track to complete the review. The following steps were initiated:

Guiding Documents

The existing plan, which is available to all faculty and staff on SharePoint, was formally adopted in 2016, with an update to the mission statement made in 2018.

Our Mission:

The mission of the Tommy & Victoria Baker School of Business is to educate and develop innovative leaders of principle to serve a global community.

Our Values

Our teaching, scholarship, and service are based on our commitment to these values:

- Integrity, diversity, and respect for others;
- Professional and intellectual development of all members of the BSB community; and;
- Excellence through continuous improvement.

The 7 strategic issues set in 2016 were:

- Issue 1. Sustaining a Qualified Faculty and Staff
- Issue 2. Enhancing Student Career Planning and Preparation
- Issue 3. Increasing Public Awareness and Reputation of the BSB
- Issue 4. Achieving Appropriate Academic Diversity and Growth
- Issue 5. Globalizing the Business School
- Issue 6. Strengthening Ties to the Business Community and Economic Development
- Issue 7. Financing our Future

What are our core values?

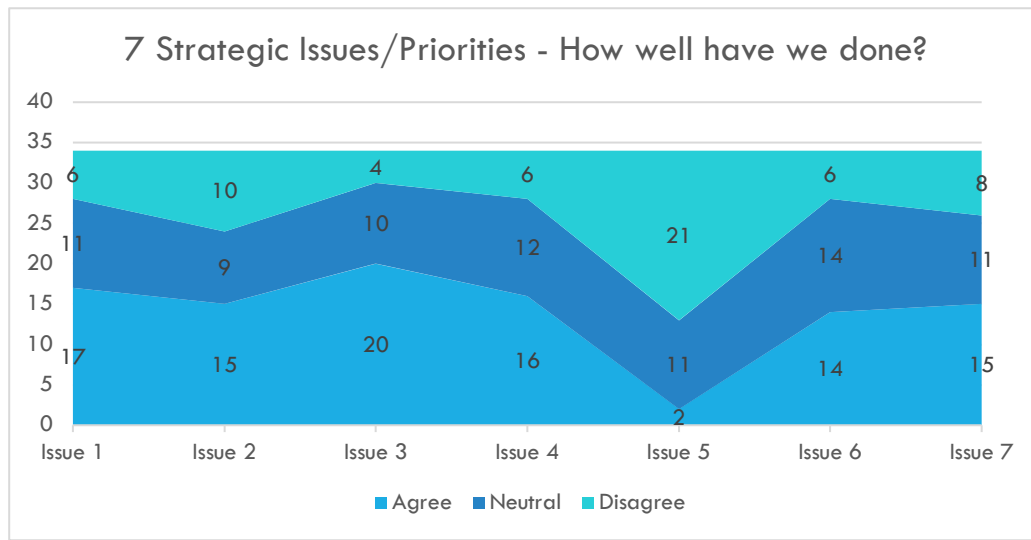

As the facilitator, Dr. Desplaces was asked to seek input from the faculty on what constituted key strategic attributes at BSB. We planned to facilitate a discussion using focus group made of 10-12 colleagues but due to Covid-19 cancelations/setbacks, the decision was made to ask David Desplaces to conduct individual interviews of the entire faculty and staff to assess their personal views regarding our existing strategic plan.

Personal invitations to participate in a 45-60-minute interview were sent to all full-time faculty and staff at BSB. 34 out of 35 full-time colleagues elected to be interviewed in the privacy of their office, a conference room or via zoom. They were all asked their recollection of The Citadel's Mission, that of the BSB, and the organization's values; how we collectively lived those values, how well the BSB had done meeting the above seven strategic priorities, and what needed to be added/changed in the future.

A formal document and a narrated video summarizing the feedback/comments was shared with the entire faculty and staff via email.

Some highlights:

- Although most of the faculty felt that we lived our values (53%), a minority felt that we lived our mission statement (29%). The greater majority understood that we formed principled leaders, and articulately clearly what that meant.
- When asked how well collectively we had done tackling the 7 strategic issues and priorities set in the 2016 strategic plan. A few trends emerged especially about issue 5 (see graph below), Globalizing the Business School, which was identified as reoccurring challenge.

- When asked what we could do to improve or what needed to change in the future, our colleagues more often than not said:
 - Excellence must be part of what we do every day
 - BSB needed to invest in the human capital (Staff and Faculty equally)
 - Our new building was a start, but that we needed a vision and leadership to take us to great
 - We needed to communicate with respect and promote stability considering many changes in the last few years
 - Accreditation is a way of life not a goal, we needed to move away from compliance
 - Through partnership Corps Life should be equal to Academic Life (we need to give academic life equal importance)
 - We needed to establish centers of excellence through innovation to move us forward

Is our Mission statement relevant?

The committee convened on March 23, 2021. David Desplaces facilitated the meeting by summarized previous circulating information and provided an agenda, mission document, SWOT table, and The Citadel Strategy Plan 2026 highlights.

Dean Weeks offered some welcoming remarks and called on a strategic plan that would answer the following:

- What should we have accomplished five years from now (clear objectives associated with our strategic analysis)
- Graduate and CTP Growth, the goods, and the bads? Do we have the resources to support these programs?
- Feedback received through the individual consultant and individual sessions, working to improve process and system.
- Is our mission consistently applied across programs?

The committee first reviewed the BSB mission in the context of The Citadel's mission. Conversations lead the committee to agree that we do not clearly operationalize and measure both "innovative" and "serving our global community." The CIR report by AACSB raised this issue during the last visit. An inventory of course coverage of global issues was conducted, but student learning is currently nonexistent. AOL committee has been engaged and might need to review this matter and update the assessment plan. Some committee members asked if we should consider removing innovation, but Dean Weeks reminds the group that it was added in 2018 and that the MBA program now had a required innovation management course. The group agreed that the current mission statement was current and relevant.

SWOT Analysis

The committee was asked to conduct a SWOT analysis. Every committee member contributed by offering descriptions, clarifications, and participate in discussions.

Strengths

- Faculty
- Brand (military background)
- Building
- Cadet alumni
- New processes
- Residential experience
- Online MBA/BBA (Flexible)
- Accreditation
- Flexible curriculum
- Changes made to the organization
- Business scholars (academic excellence)
- rankings of our MBA/Online program

Weaknesses

- Military "Lens"
- Global awareness/initiative - no data/not measured (except course audit report)
- Institutional Culture is a barrier to innovation.
- Outreach is limited. What is our impact on our community?
- Communication is fragmented/incomplete/not proactive
- Demanding the nonacademic life of our cadets limits their growth opportunities outside of the classroom and barracks.
- The Alumni network comes with much power at The Citadel, which can weaken academic importance.

- Corps not equal to academics (should be as important)
- The volume of change on faculty and staff creates stress/morale/exhaustion.
- "Being innovative" (mission) is not measured.
- Personnel turnover is an issue (must invest in our people across campus)
- Rigor in our program must be strengthened (people should want to study business and be proud of being BSB students)
- Quality of students (admission effort to attract better students)
- Accreditation should not drive the process of what and how we do things at BSB.
- The lack of diversity on both staff/faculty and students is a concern.

Opportunities

- Experiential activities to enhance learning outcomes/experience of our students (business bowl, Innovation lab, etc.)
- Centers of excellence per discipline/area to help showcase the building
- Building and programs should become a beacon in our community as a strong brand (These are BSB students/graduates).
- Growth in the area/outreach opportunities with industries/small business
- Through rigor, we can develop quality graduates

Threats

- Not a sustainable business model in the long term
- Pay/rewards/incentives will make sustaining/retaining faculty/staff hard
- State support is inexistent
- The future pipeline of cadets (demographics/cost of college is not sustainable)
- Saturated online program offering across the industry/region
- Lack of diversity on staff/faculty and students

Setting Our Priorities

The committee was asked by Dean Weeks to review the SWOT list and provide comments. The committee was subsequently asked to rank each priority.

Members of the committee ranked each issue and opportunity in order of importance.

- Top strengths were faculty and staff, the building and our AACSB International accreditation.
- Key weaknesses were key personnel turn over, new faculty, and global awareness/initiative
- Main opportunities are growth in area/industries, ability to produce quality graduates, and available experiential learning.

- Significant threats are pay/reward/incident to sustain/retain faculty/staff, future pipeline of cadets, and saturated online program offerings.

The committee met May 10th and 13th and decided that based on the feedback the following four strategic initiatives were in line with our mission:

1. Recruit and Sustain a Diverse and Qualified Faculty and Staff
2. Globalization of the Business School
3. Strengthening Outreach to the Community while Increasing the Reputation of the Business School

The committee subsequently did meet and identified specific objectives, actions to achieve those objectives, and proposed KPIs that could be used to measure progress towards achieving those objectives.
