

Other Important Offices at The Citadel

The Citadel is committed to providing an environment rich in advanced learning and development for faculty and students. The following offices assist to provide additional resources and information that will help to further faculty research activities.

The Citadel Foundation

The Citadel Foundation, a 501(c) 3 charitable organization, was established with the primary purpose of providing financial assistance and support exclusively for The Citadel. Founded in 1961 as The Citadel Development Foundation, the organization was initially tasked with raising money exclusively for educational purposes through the academic endowment fund.

The Citadel Foundation, as it is known today, emerged from a campus-wide consolidation of fundraising entities in 2000. They are now responsible for raising funds for all purposes except athletic scholarships.

Institutional Review Board (IRB)

The Citadel's Institutional Review Board is responsible for ensuring the protection of human research participants in accordance with the ethical principles presented in the Belmont Report and as mandated by federal law. No research project, which involves human subjects, may begin prior to receiving IRB approval.

Financial Services Department

The mission of the Financial Services Department is to manage the financial activities of the College relating to accounting, disbursements, construction project accounting, payroll, investments, grants, fixed assets, and cash flow management. The office seeks to improve these functions and keep the College and in compliance with new accounting principles and practices.