Course description and Objectives:

In this course, students will gain confidence when communicating in French and will cultivate respect for cultural differences. Students will develop awareness of various aspects of French and Francophone cultures through course materials, including dialogues, readings, audiovisual materials and online resources.

The objectives of this course are achieved best through the consistent practice of the four language skills: listening, speaking, reading and writing.

This course maintains the following objectives, based upon ACTFL's National Standards for Foreign Language Learning:

A. Communication. The use of French in order to . . .

- use greetings and farewells
- talk about colleges, universities, and school life
- describe family and friends
- discuss cafés, food, and drink
- talk about leisure-time activities and sports
- ask relevant questions about a given topic utilizing, with moderate control:
- regular and irregular verbs in the present tense
- negations
- descriptive and possessive adjectives
- interrogative words
- definite articles, indefinite articles, and the partitive

- cardinal numbers and expressions of time
- spelling-change verbs

B. Cultures: gain knowledge and understanding of French and Francophone cultures.

Short videos and cultural and literary readings from throughout the French and Francophone World will aid the student in this goal.

C. Communities: participate in a community of language learners in a multilingual world.

Through group and class work, a sense of community develops as students practice their communicative skills, thereby preparing themselves to use French throughout their lives. As a group, students will explore their own notion of community as this compares to this concept in the French and Francophone world.

D. Comparisons: make informed comparisons between English and French and themselves and others.

Via written work and in-class discussions, students will be encouraged to make comparisons between their own known reality and the French and Francophone world. Students will also compare ideas with each other in pair and group work, based upon the conversational goals of each chapter. Students will reflect on how the structures of French compare to the structures of English and other languages they know.

E. Connections: the ability to connect this course to other courses and self to others.

The different themes explored in each unit will inform students in such a way that they can make connections between their own cultural traditions and those of some members of the French and Francophone worlds, with particular emphasis on developing ideas through oral and written activities.

General Education Essential Learning Outcomes: Critical Thinking

Critical Thinking: “Student can analyze complex issues that have varying positions and assumptions using information from credible sources. Student has the ability to state positions, create new positions, and acknowledge other positions including implications and consequences.”

Knowledge of a second language and exposure to different cultural perspectives are important tools in the development of critical thinking skills.

General Education Essential Learning Outcomes: Intercultural Knowledge and Competence

Intercultural Knowledge and Competence: “A set of cognitive, affective, and behavioral skills and characteristics that support effective and appropriate interaction in a variety of cultural contexts.”

The study of a second language and that language’s culture(s) is an essential component of intercultural knowledge and competence. Through languages, students learn to see themselves as members of the world community by engaging meaningfully with others and putting culture at the core of transformative learning.

Attendance:

Class attendance is required. Students with excessive absences will not pass the course. Absence from class does not exempt the student from responsibilities, and work handed in late may not be accepted. Tardiness to class is also unacceptable, and habitual tardiness will result in a lowering of the final grade.

There are NO MAKE-UP TESTS except in extreme circumstances. You must contact the instructor prior to the test if you want to be considered for a make-up.

Electronic devices (such as phones) must be turned off and put away during class unless they are being used for a purpose related to coursework and that use has been approved by the professor. Failure to do so will have a negative impact on your participation grade. Anything that interferes with your full engagement and participation in class will have a negative impact on your participation grade.

Translation Programs: Use of online translators, translation software, etc. is prohibited unless such use has the prior approval of the professor.

Supersite Plus:

Students should use their online resources on a daily basis. Students must complete all activities assigned by the instructor. The instructor will collect written assignments throughout the semester in addition to the work assigned online.

Participation:

Students must prepare thoroughly for each class and participate actively in French during class. An evaluation of your participation in class is an important component of your grade, and your participation grade will be measured by consistent classroom efforts, a consistent effort to communicate in French, and attendance.

Grade distribution:

Class participation and preparation (includes weekly quizzes and pop quizzes) 25%
Homework (compositions, oral presentations, workbook, and other assignments) 25%
